Conferences in Italy

On 24 August some 1,900 years ago, a cloud appeared in the sky over the Bay of Naples. Initially resembling a pine tree, the cloud soon fell back on itself, increasing in breadth as it did so. Thus began the destruction (and preservation) of the Roman towns of Pompeii, Herculaneum, and Stabiae.

The catastrophic eruption of the long-dormant Vesuvius is well documented for us in two letters written shortly after the event to the historian Tacitus by C. Plinius Caecilius Secundus, or Pliny the Younger as he is more commonly known. Pliny the Younger was lucky and escaped. His uncle, however, the great natural historian and scientist, Pliny the Elder, was less fortunate, succumbing to his own curiosity. Having observed the strange cloud and being the local naval commander, he ordered a boat to take him across the bay to allow him a closer look. He died on the shore near a friend's house at Stabiae below the volcano, as much a victim of his scientific interest as of his corpulent and unhealthy body.

Today, a visitor to Pompeii and Herculaneum does not face the same dangers—at least he hopes so. Thus Canadian scholars need have no fear in attending the following conferences to be held in Italy between September and spring 1980:

24 Congresso internazionale di storia dell'arte. Bologna. 10 to 28 September.

19 Convegno internazionale di studi sulla Magna Grecia, "L'epos in occidentale." Taranto. 7 to 12 October.

The House of the Vettii destroyed on 24 August AD 79.

Congresso internazionale sulla regione sotterrata dal Vesuvio: studi e prospettive. 11 to 15 November.

Convegno internazionale di studi Pirandelliani e Manifestazioni Pirandelliane. Agrigento. 6 to 10 December.

4 Seminar on Canadian Studies. Taormina. Late spring 1980.

When Reporters Come Calling

The Office of Community Relations along with the Faculty of Extension will sponsor a workshop for University staff to be held on Tuesday, 25 September 1979. The workshop, When Reporters Come Calling, has been designed to assist members of the University community improve their ability to speak to members of the news media and to conduct themselves more effectively during interviews.

Participants in the workshop will benefit from the experience of three prominent Edmonton journalists each representing a different medium, Bill Laing and Bob Spence of the CBC and Pete Brewster of the Edmonton Journal.

Activities in the full day workshop will be varied. There will be a series of live-interview sessions and plenty of opportunity to examine details of technique. Not only will the basic "do's and don'ts" of giving an interview be covered, but also other important questions will be addressed. For example, participants will explore the most effective ways of approaching the news media with stories and will consider how best to gain redress after "bad press."

It is expected that the workshop will be of particular benefit to University staff who already experience, or anticipate, periodic liaison with journalists.

When Reporters Come Calling will be held from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on campus, 25 September, with lunch served at The Faculty Club. Unfortunately, there is a registration limit of twenty participants with the result that

Folio

The University bulletin Folio has served the campus for many years and has become one of the prime vehicles for disseminating information to the University community and beyond. Partly as a result of the bulletin's wide readership, however, and partly as a result of ever increasing costs, Folio has been compelled to adopt the following policies:

- Effective 4 October 1979, all University offices and departments will be charged for the placement of display advertisements. The rates for University contributors during the current fiscal year will be:

(a) Half page	$62.50
(b) Column	31.25
(c) Unit	6.00
(d) Business card (two units)	12.00
(e) Typesetting (per word)	.12
(f) Adjustment of design work	3.00
- Effective immediately, all publicly or privately funded institutions, whose budgets are not administered by The University of Alberta, will be charged for the placement of material under the rubric "Positions Vacant" at the full current advertising rates.
- Information placed under the rubric "Notices" is restricted to that which emanates from university or governmental sources.
- The deadlines for submission of material for inclusion in "Coming Events," "Service Information," and "Advertisements" are indicated clearly under the appropriate heads. There can be no guarantee that information which reaches the Office of Community Relations after those deadlines will be published in the desired issue of Folio. It should be noted that the deadline for cancellation of advertisements is the same as that specified for their submission.

5. The Office of Community Relations reserves the right to amend or reject any material submitted. Information appears in any part of the bulletin as a service to the University community according to the dictates of available space. The acceptance of material submitted to the Office of Community Relations should not be understood to guarantee a date for publication.

Should there be any questions concerning the policies announced here, please direct them to the Editor, Folio, Office of Community Relations, 423 Athabasca Hall, telephone 432-2325.

Arbitration Award

Further to the Special Communications Bulletin issue on 20 July 1979 by Personnel Services and Staff Relations, the Arbitration Board has advised the University that non-academic employees are eligible for six weeks vacation in the vacation year in which they complete thirty-one years of service.

Occupational Health, Safety, and Fire

A national twenty-four hour emergency information centre for dangerous goods has been established by the federal government to provide fast and accurate information on how to handle emergencies resulting from the transport of dangerous goods. Data can be provided on the best ways to cope with fire, spills, or leakages; whether or not spilled material is inflammable, explosive, or toxic; and how people exposed to such material may best be treated.

The telephone number for emergencies is (613) 996-6666.

For more information write to Transport Canada Information and Emergency Centre, Tower B, Floor 3, Place de Ville, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0N5.

In the past, members have opened their homes for the smaller functions and these have been very successful. Singles on Campus has been sponsored as a University group by the Student Affairs office of the University.

For more information or input, please telephone Audrey Brooks at 487-9195.
